LGA40404

Tailored for Parks and Gardens Supervisors and Managers

This is a nationally recognised qualification, focusing on a wide range of skills required by outdoor staff and supervisors in local government. Local Government Training Institute (LGTI) has developed this program to offer flexibility with ongoing support. To gain this certificate, participants can combine recognition of current work-related skills and knowledge with structured training and assessment to enhance their capabilities in areas important to their organisation and their career.

It will provide participants with general skills such as OH&S and organising work priorities as well as more specific work-related skills.

Duration

It will normally take 2 years to complete the learning and assessment for this qualification.

Delivery and Assessment

Two options are available for delivery of this program: flexible delivery and correspondence.

Option 1: Flexible Delivery Program

Participants undertake this qualification in their work place and face to face workshops. They receive appropriate support and assistance from qualified trainers at Local Government Training Institute, such as coaching and face-to-face training.

At the start of the program, participants are given a Learner's Toolkit – containing learner's guides, reading materials, work based projects, self-assessment checklists and appropriate assessment tasks. They are contacted regularly by the Local Government Training Institute staff to offer support and maybe visited in the workplace to monitor their progress and assess their skills. Phone and email support is available at all times.

Option 2: Training undertaken in the workplace using learning materials provided by LGTI

With the "Correspondence", participants receive all of the resources and phone / email support as mentioned for the flexible delivery program. However, all support, assessment and monitoring are at a distance (ie. not face to face).
