

Licence to Perform Dogging

(CPCCLDG3001A)

This course is a legal requirement for any person who directs the operators of mobile and tower cranes. This course will provide the skills and knowledge required to direct the operator, to safely sling and direct loads, and to maintain and care for dogging equipment.

The aim of this course is to train participants in dogging skills in accordance with the OHS Act 2000/Regulation 2001 and WorkCover licensing requirements. It provides participants with a licence issued by WorkCover.

This course requires participants to complete reading tasks, written assessments and load calculation (including working with angles). The calculations and mathematics component can be challenging. Participants need to apply themselves to successfully complete the calculations and assessments. Participants also need to learn knots, hand and whistle signals. This is not a simple course and extra study is required.

Before and during the training, it is vital that you commit extra time to study of course materials. This will ensure you have the best chance possible of completing the assessment exam to Workcover standards and being accredited as a dogman. Participants who not pass the final assessment can return to be re-assessed. Re-assessment fees apply.
